Our Cash Argument

Under our eash system we have, in three months, been compelled to move to a larger store-house and employ extra force in order to meet the demands of our trade.

We don't claim to sell all the goods that resold here, but we still say we will make our friends treat you right. Even an enemy syour friend if he makes your friend treat you right. Then how great a friend must your friend be who treats you right without the making? Did you buy for $1 fourteen the making? Did you buy for $1 fourteen pounds of choice sugar, ten pounds of choice coffee, or 4-4 full weight domestic at 6[e, or best prints at 6e, before we put them down? Suppose you permit Harry to go to your smoke-house and take one of your most choice hams every week—how long will it be before you would have to sell the remainder at double its value to make good your loss? Thissuits our case exactly. Harry comes given suits our case exactly. Harry comes every day—(there are many Harries.) Suppose we load him down (not up) with 10 pound

We don't pretend to say all who ask for credit will not pay. We admit that Tom and Dick will pay, and that Harry will not. We are always busy, and to save us we can't know Harry from Tom and Dick. He is as good-looking, and more glib on the tongue.

Now to the point: Gentlemen, two-thirds of ou furnish the other one-third all their luxries, &c. This loss don't fall on Smith, Lenchan, or Mr. ----, but the people foot the whole bill.

We keep a full line of Clothing, Gents Furnishing Goods, &c., also a general stock of merchandise, and pay the highest market price for barter of all kinds.
